SOUTH AFRICA

Dear Justice Lewis:

I am pleased to inform you that Primedia Broadcasting v. Speaker of the National Assembly rendered by the Supreme Court of Appeal of South Africa was among a select few finalists for the third biennial Columbia University Global Freedom of Expression Prize in the Significant Legal Ruling category. Though the award committee has selected another to receive this honor, please know that it found great meaning in your work.

The third biennial Columbia Global Freedom of Expression Prizes will be presented in a ceremony on the Columbia University campus on Wednesday, April 25, 2018. The Prizes are part of the Columbia Global Freedom of Expression Initiative, led by distinguished human rights scholar and advocate Agnès Callamard. Its mission is to connect international experts and activists with the University's faculty and students to document the development of international norms and institutions that protect the free flow of information and expression.

Considering your transformative work in this arena, I welcome your further engagement with this initiative. For additional information, visit:

I extend my warmest congratulations on this well-deserved recognition of your outstanding work.
